

Claims

sub
A3

5

1. A portable telephone set comprising:
internet connection means;
call means;

call connection request acceptance means; and control means for starting a call by controlling said call means depending on signals from said call connection request acceptance means indicating call termination or call origination during internet connection.

10

2. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising means for converting received internet information to a facsimile signal which is then output to an external component.

15

3. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising means for automatically originating to a prespecified mail address in case an incoming call is not answered.

20

4. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising means for notifying (the mail address) of a person that has attempted (the unanswered call) of another contact used in case (the incoming call) to the portable telephone set is not answered.

25

5. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising means for reading off internet information as a voice.

6. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising timer means, image input means, voice input means, and means for sending ^{NA} (the information) around the portable telephone set to the internet every specific interval. ?

7. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising image input means, voice input means, and means for sending information around the portable telephone set to the internet according to a request from outside. ?

8. A portable telephone set according to claim 1, further comprising means for sending via facsimile another contact used in case a call is not answered by a portable telephone set to ^{NA} (the facsimile number) of a person that has attempted ^{NA} (the unanswered call).